NOTE: The following Psychoanalytic Institutes are Members In Good Standing in the API and have voting rights at the API bi-annual Committee Meetings, unless conditions are noted below.

To characterize its school of thought, each Psychoanalytic Institute must have previous approval from its professional, superordinate, overseeing, endorsement community. For instance, a Psychoanalytic Institute cannot describe its school of thought as "Jungian" unless the International Association for Analytical Psychology (IAAP) has granted permission. All Psychoanalytic Institutes which use multiple theoretical bases in their psychoanalytic training programs are characterized below as "Eclectic" unless a more appropriate "school of thought" is agreed upon.
